Portrait Reflector

Assemble the reflector frame as shown connecting the two adjustable side arms to the bottom reflector arm using two of the adjustable joints.

The reflector arm assembly can then be mounted onto a lighting stand using the third adjustable joint.

The three folding reflectors can then be mounted onto the frame, using the spring loaded clips as shown below.

The reflectors can be used in any surface combination required, dependant on the amount of warmth required in the picture. The adjustable side arms allow the side reflectors to be used both horizontally and vertically.

The adjustable joints allow the side reflectors to be angled individually as required or the complete set of reflectors to be angled using the joint between the stand and reflector unit.
